WASHINGTON (UP) — The House Appropriations Committee today tore up President Eisenhower's budget for independent agencies and handed Congress a new one carry ing a $627,577,400 higher

The committee refused to allot 200 million dollars the President requested. On the other hand, it voted to give him 827 million dollars he didn't request.

The unusual action was taken by the Democratically controlled committee in approving for House floor action next week a $6,549 920,900 bill to finance more than a dozen so-called independent federal agencies in the year starting next July 1.

Public Building Projects The committee recommended extra treasury outlays of:

-$589,000,000 for the federal employes' retirement fund to prevent the deficit from increasing. Although it could be termed a mere bookkeeping transaction, the effect would be to increase the federal spending budget by that amount. The President has been withholding the federal government's full contribution to the fund to make his spending budget look smaller. The committee turned thumbs down on that approach this year.

—$177,255,000 to finance construction of 66 public buildings projects. The administration wanted instead to acquire the buildings under lease - purchase contracts. Under this controversial system the buildings are constructed by private enterprise and the government buys them under the installment plan through so-called long-range "rental pay-ments." The committee said this system is "much more expensive and cumbersome" than direct government construction.

The committee said the latter provision as well as other budget increases it recommended were aimed at "fighting the depres-sion." It noted that under the lease-purchase plan which Con-gress refused to renew last year only one building was built in more than three years.

Moreover, it said, lease - purchase construction costs the taxpayer over the long-run $1.64 for each $1 worth of buildings.

Money for VA Hospitals

The committee also: -Rejected a request for $3,975,-000 for construction of a U.S. mission building in New York City. —Denied $70,000,000 for stock-piling strategic and critical materials, saying that there already was more than seven billion dol-hars worth on hand. -Alotted $4.932,210,000 to the Veterans Administration, instead of the requested $4,967,552,000. The committee recommended an additional $8,356,000 for in-patient care and $10,000,000 for construction of VA hospitals but more than offset these budget increases by reductions in funds requested for pensions and benefits.

Benefits under the veterans programs are fixed by law. Thus, the committee was merely scaling down the administration's estimate of what these programs would cost, rather than achieving any actual savings. Congress would have to make up any shortage later.

The committee also made minor reductions in budget requests for the Federal Communications Commission, and the Federal Power Commission, the Federal Trade Commission and a number of other independent agencies.

It recommended 115 million dol-lars for the National Science Foundation, compared with a budget estimate of 140 million.

Among non-whites the percentage of absent parents was 69.1.

Seeking Excuses To Spend

The Russian advances in space work last fall caused a whirlwind in Washington bureaucracies on where to spend chief topic of talk among Washington money so we could catch up.

Most of the confusion was centered about where federal aid to education could best be injected into the picture. Liberal elements of both parties had long sought a path to approach nationalization of education. From all appearances, the Russian satellite furnished adequate grounds for the "crash" program in education.

Then came the Army's Jupiter-C missile and the Explorer satellite. More recently, the Navy has orbited a small moon with its Vanguard. Some scientists claim the Russians are still ahead since Sputnik II was far greater in weight than either of the two American satel-

On the other hand, the Republicans want to put business in a more favorable climate by 1959 so they, too, can take credit for "recovery."

So outlets for federal expenditures are being sought by elements of both parties and all bureaucracies. The highway program may get anywhere from $600 million to $1.4 billion additional pumped into it. Housing, public works, defense and the relief are also due an ample drenching of federal financing.

In addition to direct federal spending, a member of the House Banking Subcommittee proposed cities be lent money "on terms so attractive as to be irresistible." THE NEWEST heavenly body to orbit around the fashion world is the Chemise . . . sensationally curved to a junior's figure. Slim and streamlined from shoulder to hem, it skips the waist and narrows the hips to suggest rather than define the figure beneath. #### Chemise Theme Is Reflected In Men's Style

While the chemise is making fashion headlines in the distaff world this Easter, the same story and the same feeling is reflected in the fashions the stronger sex will be wearing in the parade, says a leading men's clothing manufacturer.

The chemise rests its case on the loose, "unfitted" look through the body - the narrowed shoulders and skirt — and its affinity for the youthful figure.

The masculine suit style that can be described in the same way is the Ivy or university style clothing that has swept the male fashion world from coast to coast, the clothing executive points out.

Natural, easy, unpadded shoulders give a narrow, trim look to the jacket, he said. The loose, "sack" line of the jacket also reflects the same easy fit as the chemise line in women's dresses, he explained. The tapered, unpleated trousers of the Ivy style for men add to the look of slim

The stamp of youth is on both styles, he said, and pointed out that the Ivy way of dressing has been embraced by men who are young in fact or in figure.
So the "chemise news" this season will have its repeat note sounded in men's fashions as the story is told "two by two" in the Easter parade.

Scavenger Hunt Held By The B & B Fun Club

A scavenger hunt for the memers of the Beaux and Belles Fun Club was planned by Mrs. E. A. Porter, Jr. and Mrs. Leon Noland, Ir. The group combed the woods at Camp Kiroli looking for everything from a needle to a key. Where would you look for a Christmas tree light? In a tree.

Chemise Theme Is Reflected In Men's Style

While the chemise is making fashion headlines in the distaff world this Easter, the same story and the same feeling is reflected in the fashions the stronger sex will be wearing in the parade, says a leading men's clothing manufacturer.

The chemise rests its case on the loose, "unfitted" look through the body — the narrowed shoulders and skirt — and its affinity for the youthful figure.

The masculine suit style that can be described in the same way is the Ivy or university style clothing that has swept the male fashion world from coast to coast, the clothing executive points out.

Natural, easy, unpadded shoulders give a narrow, trim look to jacket, he said. The loose, "sack" line of the jacket also reflects the same easy fit as the chemise line in women's dresses, he explained. The tapered, unpleated trousers of the Ivy style for men add to the look of slim length.

The stamp of youth is on both styles, he said, and pointed out that the Ivy way of dressing has been embraced by men who are young in fact or in figure.

So the "chemise news" this season will have its repeat note sounded in men's fashions as the story is told "two by two" in the Easter parade.
